This University

Greetings of unity and academic excellence!

In light of the upcoming Agriculturists Licensure Examination (ALE) and our mutual commitment to uphold academic excellence among our institutions, the undersigned ALE coordinators from Pampanga State Agricultural University, Bataan Peninsula State University – Abucay Campus, Tarlac Agricultural University, and Bulacan Agricultural State College would like to propose a unified online review and mentorship program.

This project aims to provide free, comprehensive online review sessions specifically designed to support marginalized students and alumni who cannot afford to enroll in private review sessions. In addition, it intends to facilitate access to review materials and recorded sessions, improve collaboration between universities by sharing a pool of review experts, and collectively raise the number of ALE passers among the participating institutions.

The review and mentorship program will be conducted via an online platform (Zoom) to accommodate examinees in various locations. Review sessions will be scheduled during weekends and/or weekdays after office hours to ensure that employed examinees are able to attend. Aside from the free online review sessions, this collaboration will include shared review materials, recorded discussions, mock board examinations, and a centralized repository of resources.

We are confident that this collaboration will not only benefit our students and alumni but will also foster stronger partnerships and unity among our universities. Together, we aspire to contribute to the advancement of the agricultural sector in the region by producing competent and licensed agriculturists who will serve as future leaders in this vital field.

We humbly seek your consideration and look forward to your positive response to this matter. Attached herewith is the project proposal for your review. Our team is willing to meet with your esteemed office to discuss the logistics, timeline, and implementation of this endeavor.

Thank you for your unwavering support of initiatives aimed at improving the licensure examination performance of our university.

Sincerely,

BREAKING THPE BARRIERS OF STUDENTS' SUCCESS IN THE AGRICULTURISTS LICENSURE EXAMINATION THROUGH CENTRAL LUZON UNIVERSITIES' FREE REVIEW AND MENTORSHIP PROGRAM

Rationale

The performance of graduates in the Agriculturists Licensure Examination (ALE) is a key indicator of the quality of education and services provided by academic institutions. Since 2003, many universities have struggled to surpass the national passing rate for this exam. To address this challenge, various strategies have been developed to improve ALE performance, including offering review sessions to graduates. Studies have shown that attendance at review centers significantly influences examinees' success in the licensure examination (Heretape & Paglinawan, 2024; Cabalza, 2019; Herrero, 2015). However, most universities rely on private review centers, which tend to be expensive and inaccessible for many graduates. Although some universities offer free review programs, attendance is often low due to scheduling conflicts between faculty availability and graduates' free time. Additionally, there is a shortage of review materials and qualified experts to cover all subject areas effectively.

To address these gaps, this program proposes a free online review and mentorship initiative jointly implemented by the four state universities in Central Luzon namely the Pampanga State Agricultural University, Bataan Peninsula State University, Bulacan Agricultural College, and Tarlac Agricultural University. The program is specifically designed to accommodate marginalized graduates and employed alumni who wish to review but lack the resources and time to attend traditional review sessions. It also seeks to establish a centralized repository of review materials and recorded sessions for easy and flexible access to students and graduates. Ultimately, the goal of this program is to enhance the performance of our graduates in the Agriculturists Licensure Examination among our partner universities, contributing to their professional success and the advancement of the agricultural sector.

Objectives:

1. To provide free, comprehensive review sessions for the Agriculturists Licensure Examination.

2. To establish a centralized repository of review materials and recorded review sessions.

3. To foster collaboration among agriculture colleges, practicing professionals, and government agencies in supporting examinees.

4. To increase the number of passers in the Agriculturists Licensure Examination.

Target Beneficiaries

This project aims to support marginalized and working alumni of PSAU, BPSU, BASC, and TAU who are unable to enroll in private review centers due to financial and time constraints, with the objective of enhancing their preparedness and improving the overall passing rate in the Agriculturists Licensure Examination.

Project Components

1. Collaboration with Agricultural Colleges and Universities in Central Luzon

Coordinate with the Agriculturists Licensure Examination (ALE) coordinators across Central Luzon to ensure the smooth implementation of the free review program. Develop effective strategies for organizing the review sessions and assign ALE topics to a pool of experts from partner universities who are willing to provide free lectures. Strengthen partnerships by sharing review materials and resources with the program beneficiaries.

2. Comprehensive review program

Implement a free, in-depth review program that covers all subject areas of the Agriculturists Licensure Examination. Provide updated review materials and resources to ensure that alumni gain the latest knowledge and are well-prepared for the examination.

3. Alumni Mentorship Program

Establish a structured mentorship program that connects examinees with successful alumni who have already passed the Agriculturists Licensure Examination. Through scheduled meetings, mentors will share their personal experiences, effective study strategies, and practical tips for overcoming common challenges during exam preparation.

4. Development of Centralized Repository of Review Materials

Create a centralized digital repository containing comprehensive Agriculturists Licensure Examination (ALE) review materials and recorded lecture sessions. This platform will provide alumni with convenient and flexible access to high-quality resources anytime and anywhere.

5. Monitoring and Evaluation

The program will monitor participants' progress by tracking their mock board examination scores and analyzing the daily usage of the centralized repository. Feedback from participants and mentors will be gathered to improve program delivery, while actual licensure exam results will be compared with mock exam performance to evaluate the program's overall effectiveness.
